Description

Audio oral history interview with Jean Hill, an eyewitness to the assassination who was standing next to her friend Mary Moorman in Dealey Plaza on Friday, November 22, 1963. Seen in films and photographs wearing a red raincoat, she believed that shots were fired from the grassy knoll. Hill's controversial account was among those prominently featured in Oliver Stone's 1991 film, JFK. Interview conducted at The Sixth Floor Museum in February 1989 by Bob Hays. The interview is forty-eight minutes long.
